Local Tax Support
Has Slipped 25%
in Last Two Years

If figures don't lie local self-government is slipping all over America.

A Princeton professor, William Miller, said this week it is not only slipping but it will be destroyed unless the people brace it up by requiring that taxation be restored at the local level.

Said Miller:

"Local self-government can not survive without local self-support." (He suggested that local self-support vanishes when 50 per cent of taxes spent locally are raised by levies from the state and federal level.)

The fact is that the tax money raised by state government and spent locally all over America totaled 2 1/2 billion dollars in fiscal 1951-52 — a jump of about 25 per cent over 1949-50, only two years earlier.

And here is Miller's concluding comment:

"It is evident that state financial aid to local government is here to stay. The great need is to develop a philosophy of state aid which will keep it from destroying local self-government through centralized finance."

I have taken the figures and quotations from a Wall Street Journal report of October 7 simply to show a nationwide picture — but it is old stuff to us here in Hope and Arkansas. We had a most disillusioning experience right after the war when the state government undertook to finance the major part of local public school costs — a bubble which quickly burst, leaving local administrative and tax authority to repair the trouble as best it could.

Only 20 years ago the Hope public school system operated on 100 per cent local tax funds. At the height of the state-support "boom" 75 per cent of our local school money was coming from Little Rock. Local school budgets were inflated everywhere on the mystic word, "Why not? The state is paying for it."

But one morning the state government woke up and found itself flat, and it was then that all of us discovered what a fraud this dependence on state aid is. We found out that big cities like Little Rock instead of honestly contributing to public education in the poorer sections of Arkansas were getting back from the state just about as much money as they contributed in sales and other special taxes earmarked for education and public welfare.

Meanwhile we had lost the habit of levying and collecting taxes at the local level.

And, what was worse, we had to write down state-dictated local budgets to a realistic level.

It wouldn't be wise for you to assume that the tenor of this editorial is to urge constant reduction of local school budgets. The whole record of this newspaper is for adequate school facilities and better-paid teachers. Two decades ago we helped lead the fight to establish the present 2 per cent state sales tax, for the benefit of local schools and public welfare. But neither the school folks nor the voters followed through with the other half of our proposition which was stated then and has been repeated many times since —

If you are going to tax the necessities of life for the common people — food and clothes — you need also to overhaul your local property tax system.

It's pleasant to get money from Little Rock. But somebody else is levying the tax, and they're also helping you fix the local school budget. That means you are selling self-government down a lazy man's road.

Property owners should be as interested as non-owners in reforming local assessments. For the alternative is more state aid, and eventually we'll face a state income tax hike which will really burn. If we aim to keep control of our local institutions we'll have to help out with local tax money.

May Limit
FBI in Cases of Kidnaping

By JOHN CHADWICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — Three members of the Senate Judiciary Committee said today they favor amending federal law to permit the FBI to step immediately into all kidnaping cases — but a fourth member disagreed.

Senators Kefauver (D-Tenn.), Kilgore (D-W.Va.) and Hendrickson (R-N.J.) suggested the change in the wake of the kidnap-slaying of 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease of Kansas City, Mo.

However, Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC) said the law was "deliberately written" as it is and he knew of no need for changing it.

Under the federal anti-kidnaping law, passed in 1932 after the fatal abduction of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., the FBI cannot officially enter a case for seven days unless it is known the victim was carried across state lines.

The law provides a maximum penalty of death.

Cities' Demand Would Raise Millwood 1 Ft.

If southwest Arkansas cities proceed with their plan to ask the federal government to grant them municipal, industrial and agricultural water rights in the projected Millwood dam on Little river it would mean increasing the overall height of the big structure only one foot.

This fact appears after study of a letter written October 2 by Col. Herbert D. Vogel, division engineer for the Corps of Engineers, to Congressman Oren Harris of the Fourth Arkansas District.

Colonel Vogel, on request of L. R. Matthias, executive vice-president of the Red River Valley association, Shreveport, made a comprehensive review of the Millwood project in the light of the pending request of the cities for municipal water rights, in his October 2d letter.

Cities of this area have under study the formation of a regional water district, and expect to unify their plans at a meeting in Texarkana the latter part of this month. These plans aren't concerned with any controversy over Millwood dam's proposed location, although this is presumed to have been finally fixed in the vicinity west of Saratoga. The idea of the regional water district is merely to assure surface water to municipalities, industries, and farmers using irrigation, if and when Millwood reservoir is created.

In recent conferences at Shreveport and Hope with Red River Valley association's Mr. Matthias it was learned that unless municipal water rights are stipulated before Millwood's construction is begun no water could ever be diverted from the reservoir in years to come. For instance, the City of Denison, Texas, overlooking this quirk of the law when the giant Red river dam was constructed at its doorstep, now is unable to get municipal water from its neighboring lake — one of the largest man-made lakes in America.

Facts About Millwood

Here are the highlights of Colonel Vogel's letter of October 2:

"As you know, the authorized Millwood Dam and Reservoir would be located on Little river about 10 miles northeast of Fulton, Ark. On the enclosed map there is shown an outline of the Millwood Reservoir as authorized, with top of conservation pool at elevation 252 and top of flood control pool at 201. The conservation storage to elevation 252 would amount to 32,000 acre-feet, and the flood control storage with pool to elevation 201 would amount to 2,208,000 acre-feet.

"Because of the indication of a desire of local interests for consideration of water supply storage in Millwood Reservoir, there is also shown on the enclosed map the outline of the top of conservation pool with an additional 100,000 acre-feet of water supply storage. With this additional 100,000 acre-feet of storage, the top of conservation pool would be at elevation 257 and the top of flood control pool would be at elevation 202. Because of the proximity of the top of flood control pool at elevation 201, the outline of the pool at elevation 202 has not been indicated on the map.

"Our studies indicate that nearly all relocations could be accomplished by raise of grade above the effects of the reservoir, and without major changes of alignment. Operation of the reservoir would affect U. S. Highway 71 from a point approximately one mile north of Wilton, Ark. and extending northerly for a distance of approximately six miles. The highway would be raised above the effects of the reservoir along the existing horizontal alignment and resurfaced 'in kind'.

Effect on Railroad

"The Grayson, Nashville & Ashdown railroad would be affected for about 12 miles of its length between Ashdown and Mineral."

Boyle Believes Wives Henpeck Their Husbands Because He Is Too Dumb to Henpeck Them

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "Whatever you do don't nag your husband," young brides are often warned. "If there is one thing a man can't stand in a wife it's nagging."

This is about the most ridiculous thing you can possibly plant in a young girl's heart just before her husband staggers across the threshold of their new home, carrying her lightly in his arms.

There are two reasons why:

1. A good wife can no more keep from nagging her husband than a porcupine can refrain from growing quills.

Hypnotist to Give Program Oct. 13 At Blevins School

J. B. Flesner, internationally famous hypnotist, presents his program, "Psychology in Action" at the Blevins school on October 13, at 7:30 p.m.

This program is one of the most educational as well as entertaining to appear on any school assembly. It captivates and thrills young and old. Mr. Flesner demonstrates and explains muscle control, cataplexy, hypnotic sleep, and mass hypnosis.

He will prove that hypnosis is not supernatural or mysterious but merely the application of psychology and mental concentration. This act differs from the ordinary in that it avoids the ridiculous and presents the factual.

Mr. Flesner spent the previous winter in the North Dakota Schools under the direction of the Division of Supervised Study, Fargo, North Dakota.

In addition a two-hour program of fun in magic, drama and a mixture of thrills for everyone, "Laugh While You Learn," will be presented.

Two Kidnapers Waive Opening Legal Steps

By PAUL DIX

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP) — The two confessed kidnapers of Bobby Greenlease today waived the first legal steps of what the state hopes chamber.

Carl Austin Hall, 34-year-old master-mind of the kidnap-slaying, and his alcoholic accomplice, Mrs. Bonnie Heady, 40-year-old divorcee, waived preliminary hearing at their appearance before U. S. Commissioner Edwin J. Bean and were ordered turned over to the state for prosecution on murder and kidnap charges.

Bean continued their bond of $100,000 each on the federal extortion charge on which the pair had been held here while FBI agents and police sought to find Thomas John Marsh, a degenerate blamed for the killing by Hall, and to solve the mystery of the missing half of the $600,000 ransom money.

U. S. Marshall Omar Schnaumeier said the pair would be turned over to authorities from St. Joseph, Mo., where Bobby's body was found in a shallow grave, for trial.

However, Schnaumeier said the time of their departure and the means of transit would be kept secret for security reasons.

Neither Hall, restrained with a

State Cotton Forecast Is Hiked

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas' 1953 cotton crop estimate has been hiked 50,000 bales over the Sept. 1 forecast to 1,325,000 because of ideal picking weather during harvest time.

That's what Miles McPeck, agricultural statistician for the Federal State Crop Reporting Service, said yesterday as the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced cotton crop forecasts as of Oct. 1.

The Agriculture Department set the nationwide forecast at 15,590,000 bales — far over the 12 million bale mark. If the crop exceeds this amount, the department says, Secretary of Agriculture Benson legally must invoke rigid marketing quotas.

McPeck said the Arkansas crop estimate as of Oct. 1 is three per cent less than last year's harvest of 1,366,000 bales.

He said a third of the Arkansas crop had been ginned as of Oct. 1.

Hurricane Brings Warnings to Florida Coast

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Storm warnings were hoisted over the Florida peninsula today and a tropical disturbance of near hurricane force was due to strike the lower west coast about noon.

The Miami weather bureau ordered storm warnings up from Cedar Key around the peninsula northward to Fernandina and on Lake Okechobee as the season's seventh tropical storm whirled toward Fort Myers.

It was about 90 miles southwest of Fort Myers at 8 a. m. moving northeast at about 10 miles per hour.

The storm had intensified to near hurricane force, with winds of 80 to 75 miles an hour over a small area northeast of the center.

"The center should reach the coast a short distance north of Fort Myers about noon, weaken somewhat in crossing the state and enter the Atlantic near Melbourne tonight," the weather bureau said.

Heavy, dangerous gales were forecast for the lower west coast from Sarasota to Everglades.

A warning by forecaster Grady Norton that the storm would trigger heavy rains throughout Florida aroused more fear than the possibility of hurricane winds, for the state already is suffering with more than a month of excessive rainfall.

Meteor Shower Is Expected Tonight

By JULIUS GOLDEN

ALBUQUERQUE, (AP) — After more than six years, nature again may reveal a cosmic panorama to man.

Throughout the world tonight, professional and amateur astronomers, those who love the vastness and beauty of the heavens, and just plain laymen, may be treated to the spectacle of a spacious meteor shower.

Dr. Lincoln La Paz, director of the Western world's only Institute of Meteoritics, at the University of New Mexico, said:

"There are good reasons to believe we will see a respectable shower Friday night. But, unlike an eclipse, we cannot predict it for sure."

Astronomers are preparing for the phenomenon, for it is seldom that such glories are revealed to man.

In 1946, eight days after Giacobini's comet passed through a certain point the earth arrived at that same point—the node—and earth's inhabitants were treated to the spectacular shower.

"A single observer," La Paz said, "saw more than 200 shooting stars in a minute. In the average shower, we are lucky to see about 60 an hour."

The Southwest United States-between Albuquerque and the West Coast—was treated to the show. But the rest of the nation, lying under a heavy cloud cover and a full moon, saw nothing.

Negro Dies From Natural Causes

A 48-year-old Negro, James Whitmore, found dead in his auto in front of his home Thursday died from natural causes, Hempstead coroner R. V. Herndon, Jr., ruled today.

Mr. Herndon said Whitmore became ill during the night and was driven to his home by another Negro, Marcella Stewart. The coroner said Stewart tried to wake him, couldn't and left. He was found the next morning by his wife. The two had been out practically all night, Mr. Herndon said.

Presbyterians to Hear Indian

The Rev. Oscar Gardner, Superintendent of Goodland Indian Reservation will speak at the Presbyterian Church Sunday afternoon at five o'clock. Mr. Gardner is a Choctaw Indian and has devoted his life to work among his fellow Indians. He is making a tour of the Synod of Arkansas, speaking in many of the churches of the Synod.

Union Grove Service Scheduled Sunday

The Rev. J. H. Reeves of Oakland, California will preach Sunday, October 11 at 11 a.m. at Union Grove Church. The public is invited.

Money, Money in the Air

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Money flowed into Champaign by air and rail yesterday.

An estimated $16,500 was scattered over a lengthy stretch of the Illinois Central Railroad's tracks after a mail pouch containing that amount was tossed off the southbound City of New Orleans at Onarga, 85 miles south of Chicago.

As the train passed through Onarga without stopping, the bag fell under the wheels and was cut open. Adding to the spread of wealth was the north-bound Southside which sped through Onarga about the same time.

Speedup in Feed Shipment Is Asked

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas farmers today told a Senate subcommittee that they needed a speedup in shipment of feed into the drought areas.

The subcommittee specifically wanted to learn how extreme the drought situation in Arkansas has been, what aid will be needed in replanting pastures, whether credits are sufficient and what is being done toward winter feed of herds.

Joe Hardin, president of the Arkansas Farm Bureau, was unable to attend but sent word that farmers are interested in:

1. Designation of all Arkansas as eligible to receive drought aid — 51 counties have been so designated;
2. More roughage for use in winter animals;
3. Credit aid extended to farmers not in livestock field;
4. Administration of the program be left at local levels.

British to Press for Big 4 Meet

MARGATE, England (AP) — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden stated today that Britain intends to continue pressing for a meeting of the Big Four heads of state despite Russia's negative response to the first overture by Prime Minister Churchill.

Loudly cheered by 4,000 Conservative party members at the opening session of the party's annual conference, Eden in his first speech since an ailing liver and gall bladder sickened him six months ago asserted British policy "has not changed" and he "gladly" restated it:

1. "To maintain the unity and strength of the Western Alliance."
2. "To keep our alliance defensive in character, to indulge in no provocative and to take advantage of any and every opportunity which may arise for settling difficulties and solving disputes."

"That is our policy. There is room in it for any meeting or conference which seems to be practicable or profitable. There is certainly room in it for assurances to the Soviets that we do not threaten their security. We are working on that, too see in what form such assurances might be given."

Eden remarked that some persons think a four-power meeting "at the highest level" is "some magic formula which only the Americans prevent us from enjoying."

Such a view, he asserted, "is, of course, the greatest nonsense."

Eden referred any persons holding such views to the last Soviet reply to the West's three-power note which he said showed "no eagerness for a meeting at any level."

8,000 Missing Presumed Dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department says that most of the 8,000 American servicemen listed as missing in Korea "must eventually be presumed dead."

While adhering strictly to its rule that no man is reported dead without "reasonably conclusive evidence," the department said yesterday, it holds little hope that any great number of them will be found alive.

Pentagon officials said battle conditions made it impossible to recover and identify many of the killed in Korea. They said "all possible efforts" — including communication with the Reds and interrogation of returned prisoners — are being made to determine the fate of the missing.

Listing as missing: 6,713 Army, 871 Air Force, 493 Marines, 1 Navy.

U.S. Embassy at Trieste and British Boot Guiana Cabinet

British Act Swiftly to Halt Communists

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP) — Britain booted out the Prime Minister and five other cabinet members today with the announced purpose of preventing Communists from taking over the British Guiana government.

Gov. Sir Alfred Savage declared a state of emergency under which the six-month-old constitution is to be scrapped. The British charged there was a Red plot to turn this South American run and sugar colony "into a totalitarian state subservient to Moscow."

These steps followed the arrival of British troops in the colony, which is sandwiched between Brazil and Venezuela on the approaches to the Panama Canal.

This colony of 450,000 people is Britain's only holding on the South American continent. Nearly half the population came from or trace their ancestry to India. Most of the others are of Negro or American Indian stock.

Prime Minister Jeddell Jagan and the ousted ministers threatened to take the dispute with Britain to London, Washington and the United Nations. Jagan and his American-born wife, the former Janet Rosenberg, have denied they are Communists and that their political party the leftwing People's Progressive Party (PPP) is Moscow-dominated. The party won parliamentary elections here in April, taking 18 of the 24 seats.

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP) — The British government announced plans today to suspend British Guiana's six-month-old constitution and to oust six People's Progressive Party (PPP) members of the cabinet to keep this colony from becoming a "Communist state."

The six ousted ministers, headed by Prime Minister Cheddy Jagan, had threatened to appeal their dispute with Britain to London, Washington and the United Nations.

A Colonial Office announcement in London said the British governor, Sir Alfred Savage, had been given emergency powers. British troop reinforcements already were on guard around government offices and major British-owned properties in Georgetown and the British aircraft carrier Implacable was due to sail tomorrow from Britain with 600 men of the famed Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders battle-tested veterans of the Korean fighting.

Jagan had denounced the troop arrivals as a "show of force." He said he would go abroad for support for his party's demand for more self-rule.

ASKED ACREAGE HIKE

WYNNE (AP) — A resolution calling for an increase in the 1954 cotton acreage allotment from a proposed 17,500,000 acres to at least 20,500,000 has been adopted by the Cross County Farm Bureau.

Bureau President H. W. Luplow of Parkin said the smaller acreage figure "would be disastrous to cotton producers."

One Found Guilty in Highway Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A Pulaski Circuit Court jury yesterday found W. Monroe Treadwell, a Morrilton automobile dealer, guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses in connection with a highway department contract.

The jury of 11 men and one woman acquitted Treadwell's son-in-law, Conway County Sheriff Martin Hawkins on the same charge.

It recommended a suspended one-year sentence on each of two counts against Treadwell.

C. F. Erwin, 64, Succumbs in Local Hospital

Carnett Frank Erwin, aged 64, a resident of Hope for many years, died Thursday in a local hospital. He had been with the Bremer-Ivory Handle Company for the past 47 years.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Edith Riddle of Bruce, Miss, Mrs. Lucille Lockwood of San Diego, Calif., a brother, V. C. Erwin of Fayetteville and a sister, Mrs. Maude Mize of Smithville, Ark.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday at the First Christian Church by the Rev. Pendleton and the Rev. Claude Clark. Active pallbearers: Frank Rider, Jack Pritchett, Earl Thompson, Jimmy Atkinson, Guy Busye and Alce Davis.

Weiner Bank Robber Jailed in Texas

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The FBI today announced the arrest of Joseph Lester Bumgarner, about 27, of near Harrisburg, Ark., for the $5,850 robbery of the Bank of Weiner, Ark., Wednesday.

M. W. McFarlin, FBI agent in charge here, said Bumgarner, described as a laborer, was taken into custody early today at the home of a relative in San Antonio, Tex. McFarlin said arresting officers confiscated $5,000, part of it hidden behind a spare tire of Bumgarner's automobile.

Bumgarner was jailed in default of $10,000 bond on a federal complaint charging bank robbery. The federal charge was possible because the Weiner bank is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

McFarlin related that Bumgarner became a suspect in the case when several residents of Weiner, which is near Harrisburg, said they had seen him loitering about Weiner before the bank opened Wednesday.

Bank employees later identified photographs of Bumgarner as those of the hold-up man, the FBI agent said.

The bank was robbed shortly after it had opened for business. A man who tried to cash a check and was refused returned to a teller's window with a scribbled note demanding "all the money."

Cotton Bale Falls Off Truck, Man Dies

MONTICELLO (AP) — One man was killed and another was injured when a bale of cotton fell from a passing truck and crushed the cab of a second truck in which they were riding near here yesterday.

Dean Taylor of Cominto, Drew County, died at a Monticello hospital of head injuries and a punctured lung.

Delbert Mansfield, also of Cominto, suffered cuts and bruises. He was dismissed from the hospital after emergency treatment.

Handing Zone to Italy Stirs Up Yugoslavs

By HELEN FISHER

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UP) — Police and firemen using high-pressure hoses bent back rock-throwing crowds from the United States embassy today in the second day of violent Yugoslav protests against the Anglo-American decision to hand over Trieste Zone A to Italy.

Shops closed at noon so that workers could join demonstrations — which the authorities said must be orderly.

But a crowd of 3,000, armed with rocks and clubs, surged on the United States embassy — which like other American and British buildings in Belgrade and other cities was damaged in violent demonstrations yesterday.

Police, swinging clubs and the flat sides of their swords, fought back the crowd in a 15-minute melee with the aid of firemen who turned on high-pressure hoses from a truck.

Marsal Tito's government sent an angry protest to the United States and Britain announcing that it "will not reconcile itself" to the delivery of Zone A to the Italians.

Yugoslavia, "will take all measures at its disposal to protect its interests," the protest said.

A direct Yugoslav appeal to the United Nations Security Council was forecast.

Yugoslav Communist Party leaders threatened a general strike throughout Zone A.

In anticipation of violence, United States and British troops were put on the alert. British troops were confined to barracks except when on duty. Planned American field maneuvers were canceled.

Yugoslavia completely sealed off the border line between Zone A and Zone B, which it occupies.

In Rome, the Italian government prepared to take over Trieste despite the violent Yugoslav reaction. Premier Giuseppe Pella called his cabinet into emergency session to consider steps in a possible new crisis with President Tito's anti-Kremlin Communist government.

In Washington, United States government officials said Zone A will be turned over to Italy "at the earliest practicable date" — possibly within a matter of weeks — despite Yugoslavia's angry reception of the Allied move.

Officials hoped that, with Zone A in Italian hands and Zone B occupied by the Yugoslavs, a friendly direct settlement between the two countries on the future of the Trieste area may be possible when tempers have cooled.

In any event, it was evident that the United States and Britain were determined to pull out the 5,000 soldiers each have kept in Trieste since the end of the war.

Gen. Sir John Winterton, Allied military governor of Trieste, told his British troops to get ready to leave. A United Press Trieste dispatch said American soldiers started selling their private automobiles and refrigerators to civilians at bargain prices.

Spring, Ark. A spur line of this railroad extending from a point near Schand, Ark., to the local company cement plant near Olney, Ark., would be affected by the reservoir for a distance of about three and one-half miles. Reclamation of both the main line and the spur of the Grayson, Nashville & Ashdown railroad would be accomplished by raising the grade above the effects of the reservoir on an offset alignment approach. The present studies indicate that relocation to the Kansas City Southern railroad would not be required because of the operation of Millwood Reservoir.
The proposed plan for Millwood Reservoir includes provision for protection of the local cement plant near Olney, Ark., by construction of a dike along the north side of the quarry and plant. This dike would be the existing cement plant and quarry; however, not all of the land owned by the local cement company could be protected by the dike. The unprotected portion of the property is not developed for quarry purposes at this time, and an allowance for purchase of the unprotected property has been made in the estimate of the cost for the project.
The preliminary studies indicate that the Little River Country club located near the crossing of Little river by Arkansas State Highway 41 between Jewell and Boronia, Ark., would not be materially affected by operation of Millwood Reservoir, since the reservoir at that location would be confined to the channel of the stream.
The estimated cost of Millwood Dam and Reservoir is 45 million dollars.

walked steadily, near Mrs. Heady, spoke during the time they were in the courtroom except for a brief question conference with Mrs. Heady's attorney, William Rosenblatt of St. Joseph.
Rosenblatt suggested to Balm that the judge was excessive but Balm said he didn't think so in view of the gravity of the charges against the pair.
The FBI meanwhile set the stage for a full-scale manhunt for Thomas and the kidnappers who was named by Balm as the killer of six-year-old Bobby Greenease as the slain child's body lay in a simple gray casket in the sanctuary where he soon would have taken his first communion.
With a choir of children's voices responding, Father Herman Koch, pastor of the white stone Catholic church of St. Agnes, intoned the high mass.

For Bobby the altar was draped in white — not black, as it would have been for an adult. In the church of his faith he is an angel.

No prayers were said for Bobby because he had not taken his first communion when he died in the hands of his kidnappers. It was considered a had not reached the age of reason.
Father Koch said the service was not for the dead but for the living — to show them God's will.
The six-year-old boy's little classmates — about 50 of them — arrived from the French Institute of Notre Dame de Sion. All but one were girls. They walked sad-faced in twos and threes, holding hands. The Negro chauffeur for the Robert C. Greenease family, who often had driven Bobby to joyous occasions, led the way today, driving a dark blue family Cadillac — the car identified with the Greenease fortune that enabled the aging father to pay $600,000 in full ransom.

The pallbearers — Greenease's partners and a Kansas City attorney — carried the plain casket into the church.

Mechanic Killed in Accident
NORTH LITTLE ROCK, 48. Forest C. Ferguson of Little Rock, a 46-year-old mechanic, was killed yesterday and three others injured when a refrigerator compressor exploded at the Fort Roots Veterans Hospital here.

The explosion occurred as the four men tested the compressor unit which they were planning to install in the hospital's kitchen. Officials are trying to determine the cause of the blast.

Mrs. Lee Montgomery gave the devotional on "Faith of Our Fathers."

Little Balls of Fat Termed a Killer
By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
CHICAGO, 48. A new medical detective can discover a killer set loose by broken bones or other seemingly non-fatal injuries.

This killer is little balls of fat, released into the bloodstream from the marrow of broken bones. Others by crushing wounds to fatty tissues of the body.

The little globs of fat are only two to three the size of red blood cells. But they can plug up tiny blood vessels in the lungs or brain, causing hemorrhages and swellings.

Most of us apparently get rid of them safely after accidents or wounds. But they are a potential hazard, and some experts blame them for causing up to 20 per cent of deaths after fractures.

The new detective to find them in a person's blood was described today to the American College of Surgeons by Dr. Leonard F. Peiffer, orthopedic surgeon of the University of Minnesota medical school.

POLIO VICTIM DIES

MEMPHIS, 48. Funeral services will be held today in Earle, Ark., for 2-year-old William Price Morrison, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Price Morrison, who died yesterday in a Memphis hospital of polio.

DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR YOU CAN'T BEAT A PONTIAC!

It's GM's Lowest Priced Eight!

Quality Proves It!

Quality shows up in Pontiac wherever you look: In size—with its long, road-leveling 122-inch wheelbase . . . unmatched at the price! In beauty—with smart Silver Streak styling and surprising luxury. In the unseen quality of engine and chassis—features that reveal themselves in the long, economical life Pontiac cars always deliver.

Performance Proves It!

Simply come in and drive a Pontiac. You'll feel the eager response of America's best-proved high-compression engine. You'll see how Pontiac's power reserve supplies all the pep you'll ever need for town traffic, a velvety smoothness that makes highway driving a pleasure. And with Pontiac dependability, you can go on and on like this—with an absolute minimum of service.

Price Proves It!

All of Pontiac's extra value is yours for just a few dollars more than the smallest, lowest-priced cars! And Pontiac ranks with the leaders year-in and year-out in resale value. That's our final reason why, dollar for dollar, you can't beat a Pontiac. Now come in and let this handsome Pontiac prove it's the best buy for you, too!

able to her in only limited measure. She is taught from childhood that nice little girls simply mustn't act like wild little boys.

After the honeymoon, she still finds she is almost as repressed. Her hubby is too tired to go dancing. Crocheting bores her. What shall she do with all the energy burning within her?

She has a mild quarrel with her husband, and afterward feels relaxed. She makes the amazing discovery: "Why I can get all the exercise I need through my vocal chords!"

And from then on she has to tame somebody or lose her muscle tone. Of course, a few wives overdo it, and jaw themselves into double chins in their effort to talk themselves into shape. It is these exceptions that have given nagging its bad name. But a sensible husband knows a routine bawling out from his wife doesn't mean much and tells himself, "She isn't really picking on me. She's just trying to keep herself physically fit."

A wise wife understands that, too-in time. She learns it is all right to nag her man about anything in the world so long as it isn't important. If it is something really important, they generally both realize he needs her help more than she needs vent exercise.

To real value of nagging to a husband arises from one of the chief differences between the sexes. Man is a thinker, a dreamer, a theorist of the world who would rather brood about what's wrong than do anything to change it. Woman is a doer, a former, who insists that any area of life under her control be styled in a pattern she prefers. And she stubbornly tries to mend the inner affections often with the needle of her tongue.

If women ever dared to criticize God, it probably would be for resting on the seventh day after making the world, and just like a man-leaving a lot of loose ends they have to tie together.

Excuse for nagging, would the average husband ever get to the dinner table, buy a new suit, get a haircut or a raise in pay? He knows he is being nagged by a loving heart, and that without it he probably would subside into the barn, nature intended him to be.

The right kind of nagging wife makes a man nervous while the husband who ought to be nervous is the one whose wife no longer bothers to nag him. What is she doing for exercise? Club work?

As a matter of fact, the real trouble with nagging in many modern marriages is that the man doesn't do enough of it. Many a woman hopsicks her husband today because he is too dumb to realize how much she yearns to be a husband-pecked wife.

Tomorrow: How to nag your wife properly.

DOROTHY DIX

French Fashions

Dear Miss Dix: Perhaps this is not exactly the type problem with which you deal, but since so many women read your column, and because the subject is so important to women, I thought you might help.

Why must we be at the mercy of a French dressmaker's dictates in the matter of our skirt lengths? Very few women look well in short skirts, and not many of us can afford to discard all our old clothes in favor of the new styles. It's about time we staged a revolt against French fashion dictators and dress according to our own pocket-books and inclinations.

MANY READERS

No Foreign Dictating

Answer: While you are correct in your assumption that fashion reporting is not my line, your letter is typical of so many I've received on this subject, that it deserves comment. In the first place, no one is dictating -- and no one can dictate what we will wear. Our days have been gone a long time. For the past several years women have gone on wearing very much what suited them, regardless of Parisian decrees. In the matter of current skirt lengths American designers, who are, incidentally, quite as powerful in the fashion field as any French or Italian couturiers, agree that the best style, or dress length for women, is whatever happens to be most becoming to them.

These so-called fashion "dictators," however, have definite values, whether one follows them or not. They are newsworthy, provide good conversational material, result in fashions that are certainly delightful to see, even if one can't wear them, and have an economic purpose, too. More people are employed in the combined production of material and clothing than in any other industry in this country. Anything that arouses unusual interest in wearing apparel helps their business, and you can easily see how the circle helps everybody. Continue to wear what suits you best, but be interested in new styles, even though they are only for the highly fashion-conscious.

Dear Miss Dix: Estelle and I have been going steady for a year; we are both short-tempered and very good friends. He is to be his cousin's best man, and has invited me to the wedding as his guest. Is this the right thing to do? If so, what should I do about a gift?

Answer: It is the prerogative of the bride and her family to extend wedding invitations. Your friend is definitely not in a position to do so. He can, and should, however, ask that an invitation be sent you, in which case you are expected to send a gift.

Answer: Spoiled, stubborn girls, once their sense of responsibility is awakened, have been known to turn into very fine wives. You are not doing much to help Estelle by taking the blame for all your arguments. Try to make her see where she's wrong and perhaps you can effect a change. Try to analyze, together, the difficulty behind your constant arguments. If there is a genuine affection between you two, your temperaments can be made compatible. If your efforts fail, then a change of friends is urged.

Texarkana Smothers Magnolia Eleven

TEXARKANA (AP) — Quarterback Paul Caver scored two touchdowns and passed for another in guiding the Texarkana Razorbacks to a 32-0 swamping over Magnolia here last night.

The Panthers scored in every quarter in the match over their Class AA opponents. The game, originally slated for tonight, was moved up to last night. The best of the Panthers' offense was a penetration to the Texarkana five where they took the ball on down.

Caver scored once in the first quarter on a six-yard dash around end and again in the final stanza on another six-yard around end. He passed to James Odum for 11 yards and a TD in the third period.

John Jacob and Forrest Campbell scored the other two touchdowns.

Fish in a Barrel
By WARREN PAGE
Shooting Editor

This angling chap had finally left, after filling my gun room with a fishy smell and a lot of tall tales about muskellunge so big they had to be shot in the skull with a .22 pistol before they could be slid into the boat. After I had aired out the room I fell to thinking about the business of shooting fish.

You know the old adage about shooting fish in a barrel—and it's true, in that whether or not your bullet actually hits your prospective quarry, the chances of the bullet's impact striking that relatively incompressible water with either disconnect a fish's nervous system or pop his air bladder and bring him helpless to the surface.

But if the fish is deep down you won't fetch him with a bullet. Not because you'll miss him, although the refractive index of water makes the fish seem to be where he isn't, but because in big water the shock effect is dissipated before it reaches him. Your bullet itself won't drive very deep into water anyway, even if you do happen to aim right.

The last over-water shooting I recall doing was at sharks—perfectly safe out where we were, 20 or 30 miles off shore, where, although spraying slugs across water isn't generally a recommended procedure because of the ricochet danger. We were offshore south of Martha's Vineyard.

There weren't any swordfish in evidence that day, but there seemed to be two sharks to every acre of surface; mackerel sharks, gray sharks, blue sharks, even a few mako, whose fins look enough like the blades of a sailing swordfish to give even the oldtimers riding the mast.

I had an ordinary .22 rifle and a .220 Swift along. In case we met a woodchuck, of course. Naturally I tried to aim on the sharks. When I was lucky enough to puncture the dorsal fin of a cruising shark with the .22 he just spun around like a sub who has been elbowed in the subway. Just a quick "Who done that?" and the toothy-faced character would go sailing on with a little whitish button-hole through his fin, in no discomfort whatever, apparently.

But finally I whacked a couple right at the base of the dorsal with the .220 Swift pellet. That really raised ructions. It seemed that the bullet either broke up on contact with the water or when it hit the shark's tough hide to tear out a chunk of meat, because for a minute or two there'd be a horrendous thrashing and wallowing by Mr. Shark, a thin stain of red on the blue sea water when we looked back. After a while there was considerable splashing commotion, and eventually a collection of hungry gulls swung over the scene.

101 Yard Run Features Hope Junior Win

The Hope Bobkittens soundly trounced the North Heights Bears by a 39 to 6 score at North Heights yesterday afternoon.

In the first quarter, Johnny Nix on the first play from scrimmage raced 55 yards into the end zone. Charles Tittle scampered around end for 25 yards and another score in the same quarter.

Tittle started the second quarter with a 30 yard run around end for a touchdown. Nix after taking a North Heights punt in the end zone raced 101 yards unopposed to the North Heights goal. Jack Ruggles ran the extra point over. The half ended with Hope out front 25 to 6.

Just before the end of the third period, Tommy Polk ran off guard for 25 yards and paydirt. A pass from Perry Purdie to Bobby Myers was good for the PAT. The final t.d. came on a 30 yard pass from Johnny Nix to Perry Purdie. Tommy Polk ran over the extra point. Hucklebee, Askew, Whitten, England, Moran, Yarberry, and Lingo were outstanding for the Bobkittens.

Transfer of Browns to Be Discussed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Minority stockholders of the St. Louis Browns today set their chance in Circuit Court to try to block transfer of the team to Baltimore.

Judge William B. Flynn was scheduled to begin hearing their suit, already delayed two days by legal maneuvers of team attorneys. The Browns asked the court to dismiss injunction and receivership features of the suit, filed last spring by holders of 60,000 shares of Browns stock. They argued that if their plan wasn't granted at once, the team would go broke and shift would be jeopardized.

Judge Flynn said he'll consider the club's motion — but not until he has heard the suit. Attorney Kenneth Tiedale of the Browns told the court yesterday that if the suit bankrupts the team, minority stockholders will be held responsible to the limit of the law.

Bill Veeck, a Browns director and former president, testified team finances were so "enfeebled" during the 1953 season that club directors had to meet "Browns' debts with personal loans."

He said Rudy Schaeffer, general manager during the Veeck regime, mortgaged his home to get money for the club. Veeck said Schaeffer wasn't repaid until the club sold a player.

Last month, the American League approved a plan to transfer the Browns' franchise to Baltimore, provided Veeck and associates sold their stock to Baltimore interests.

Montreal Takes Little World Series

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Montreal Royals today held the Little World Series title for the first time since 1943.

Blasting out 13 hits, the Royals last night turned back Kansas City of the American Association 7-2 to cap the series four games to one. The win gave the Brooklyn Dodgers organization a little consolation over the Brooklyn Dodgers' defeat by the New York Yankees.

Montreal is the International League farm club of the Dodgers. Kansas City is a Yankee farm team.

Montreal went right to work last night as Dick Whitman whacked a homer in the first inning. The Royals then proceeded to spit four Kansas City hurlers, scoring single tallies in the fourth and sixth innings and a pair in each of the last two games.

Top Football Games Set for Saturday

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Time was when the Ivy League would tremble if one of its members scheduled a game with a Pacific Coast Conference team.

But that wasn't 1953.

Tomorrow the University of Pennsylvania entertains California in Philadelphia and it would be considered far from an upset if the Quakers win the big intercollegiate contest.

Penn. has a murderous schedule with only one Ivy League school on it and the experts are figuring that maybe George Minger's boys will not be able to hold up. But they won their first game in 15 years from Penn State last week and are not disposed to play dead.

California is sub-par this year, but Pappy Waldorf has come up with a nifty quarterback in

Sunday School Lesson

What God Intends Us To Be
By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

What God intends us to be is undoubtedly something better than we are. Regardless of whatever we have attained, the law of the Christian life is to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ (II Peter 3:18). There is no limit to that grace and knowledge.

But if we could think of man as starting from scratch, or with an unformed life, what does God require?

First of all, honesty and uprightness; righteousness is the very foundation of the godly life. If there be evil in act, through or motive, the one essential is repentance, and the turning toward righteousness. "Cease to do evil; learn to do well" (Isaiah 1:16, 17). In Romans 12:9 Paul says virtually the same thing as Isaiah in slightly different words:

"Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good." For Jew or for Christian, in fact for those of religion, in any time or place, the essential of the good life is the same.

It is righteousness, man's willingness to live according to what he knows to be best.

But the Christian life, what God intends us to be, is not all found in personal goodness. The Christian life is a life of relationships. Man does not live alone. He has privileges and duties in relation to his fellowmen as well as to God, and the nature of his life toward God, in its reality and integrity, is, in fact, determined largely by what man is toward his fellowmen.

"If a man say, I love God; and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God, whom he hath not seen?" (I John 4:20).

This all becomes plain and very specific, and also very applicable to our present-day world of racial, religious, and sectional prejudices, jealousies and hatreds. Consider not only the words and example of Jesus, but Saint Paul's very vivid and practical definition of the meaning and effect of the new life in Christ.

In many passages Paul describes the "new man," "renewed in knowledge after the image of Him that created him" (Colossians 3:10). "If any man be in Christ," he wrote (II Corinthians 5:17), "he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."

How really new all things should be to this "new man" became very evident when Paul put it all in very definite and practical attitudes and relationships, man with man. That ancient world was a world in which slavery was the common lot and condition of men in addition there were all sorts of hatreds and prejudices, just as there are in the world today.

It was not altogether a coincidence that the strongest word that Paul could have expressed concerning these things should have been expressed to the Christians in the church at Colossae. It was there in that church that Philemon, the master, was a leader to whom Paul sent back from Rome the converted run-away slave, Onesimus.

But what Paul wrote went far beyond the relationship of slave and master. Paul wrote about a life and a world, "where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free; but Christ is all and in all" (Colossians 3:11).

That is Christian democracy. But how far human democracy lags behind, and what a long way we must go before we catch up with Paul, or attain to what God intends us to be!

Blytheville Gets Official Action

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Three Washington officials today were on their way to Blytheville, where they'll see about possible uses of the former Blytheville air base. The base was recently turned down by the Air Force as a bomber base site. Last week a Blytheville delegation was in Washington where they were assured a further study would be made.
